Six years after the foundation of Antica Torino and the very first batch of Vermouth di Torino Rosso, Vittorio and Filippo decided to produce among the most important alpine liqueurs of the region of Piedmont: Genepi and Genziana.

Genepi is the liqueur associated with the Alps. The yellow flowers are picked in the wild and highly elevated landscape of the Alps. It has a golden-green color and it brings to mind family dinners of yesteryear and evenings with friends after a day on the slopes. Genepi has a powerful taste, both fresh and slightly sweet, and it is a great nisher to a good meal but can also be an ingredient for original cocktails, adding grassy notes that will intrigue your guests and make for memorable mixes.

We suggest it on the rocks or in refreshing long drinks like the Genepito with soda, ice, cane sugar, mint leaf and lime juice, the Julep with ginger ale, lime, mint leaf and orange slice (both cocktails are muddled) or the most sophisticated Genepi Martini with gin, green absinthe and lemon twist (mixed and strained).
